ACADEMIC POSITIONS AND PERSONAL INFORMATION

Full Professor of Economics & International Affairs, George Washington University
Department of Economics and Elliott School of International Affairs (ESIA) 2023-

Director of the Institute for International Economic Policy (IIEP), ESIA

Director of the ESIA Initiative on Climate Change and Sustainable Cities 2023-

co-Director of the ESIA Local Sustainable Governance Lab 2024-

Institute for International Economic Policy: <https://iiep.gwu.edu/>

IIEP serves as a catalyst for high-quality, multi-disciplinary research to improve local, national, and global policy in business, development, finance, poverty, sustainability, science, technology, and trade. IIEP has 60 faculty affiliates spread across departments and schools, 2 employees, and 35 student staff. IIEP hosted 150 events in 2022-2025. IIEP supports faculty with funding, by providing research assistants and grant support, and by helping publicize their work to various audiences.

Local Sustainable Governance Lab: <https://iiep.gwu.edu/local-sustainable-governance-lab>

The Policy Lab focuses on enhancing local governance's role in addressing climate change and sustainability challenges. Led by 15 core faculty from various disciplines at ESIA, the Lab's primary goal is to make local governance around the world an effective force for measurable progress in the area of climate change and sustainability. Recognizing that most climate action happens at the local level, the initiative seeks to overcome the significant challenges local policymakers face, such as data management, system coordination, and just infrastructure development.

Affiliated Scholar, Marron Institute of Urban Management at New York University (NYU) 2019-

Associate Professor of Economics and International Affairs, GWU, 2016–2023
